

A coordinated criminal justice and health response to drugs

The Criminal Justice System plays an integral role in drug use prevention by protecting public safety, reducing the availability of drugs and discouraging use in the population. The Criminal Justice System can also be a powerful vehicle to promote recovery by leveraging its sentencing authority to promote treatment, healing, and recovery of individuals, families, and communities dealing with drug use and abuse.

Moderator: Erik Leijonmarck, Secretary General ECAD (European Cities Action for Drug Free Societies)

Caroline Cooper

Research Professor and Director Justice Programs Office,
School of Public Affairs, American University

Valérie Lebaux

Chief, Justice Section, Division for Operations,
UNODC

Torbjørn Brekke

Specialist Director
Norwegian Ministry of Health and Care
Services

Ali Reunanen

Lecturer and former addict. Clean and crime-free since 21 years,

